The two story gabled residence utilizes a number of surface designs and patterns. The basically L-shaped home has a first story shiplap construction, a second story scalloped shingle design and above the second story window, diagonal cross-hatching and vertical planking.

The first story, shed roofed bay has two shuttered, Queen Anne windows in the front and one at each side enclosed within the cross-hatched shingled design. At the second story level is a double hung, 4/4, shuttered window with a double sill design. Near the center of the high pitched gabled roof are two, small, square windows with mullion and continuous lintel and sill which is formed by the intersecting planks. The boxed cornice is braced at the base by corner brackets upon which is built a jigsaw construction that follows the line of the cornice.

The adjoining, split-gambrel roofed section of the house contains an open porch with piers which support the extension of the second story. Diagonal planking followed by scalloped shingles covers the second story facade with the exception of the double hung, 4/4, shuttered window and window box which are sheltered by the split in the roof.
